

Congratulations Graduates!

"I considered school a waste of time but now realize how important an education is. Graduating with my high school diploma will pave the way to a better life."

— Brian Smith, student

Congratulations Brian and all graduates of the Nova Scotia School for Adult Learning.

This year, 450 adult Nova Scotians graduated with a high school diploma.

The Department of Education would like to thank its partners: Department of Community Services, Service Canada, community-based learning organizations, regional school boards, NSCC and Université Sainte-Anne.

Programs are offered at more than 150 sites across the province to help adults upgrade their literacy skills and better prepare them for the workforce.
